

Methods for increase of safety of motion of transportation means is in fact that along direction of motion one installs means for control of motion, road signs and traffic lights, and drivers read information of signs and traffic lights signals with control of vehicle with account of information obtained. Information of means for traffic control, road signs and traffic lights is duplicated with respective signal of kitted radiation of electromagnetic waves in radio range, modes of coding duplication signals are set from azimuth direction of main information of means for traffic control, traffic lights and/or road marks. One registers the signal with receiving device installed in vehicle with implementation of indication of means for control of traffic, traffic lights and/or road signs by means of audio-visual interpretation of coded signals at workplace of vehicle driver.