

Light information panel that includes flat plate made of optically transparent material with face surface intended for application of information, back and end surfaces, rod with luminodiodes installed in end surface of the plate. The rod is placed in profiled body that surrounds the ends of the face and back surfaces.