

A method for surface gluing of paper and cardboard includes treatment of those with water solution on basis of modified starch and following drying. Before treatment a solution of polyamide tar modified with epichlorohydrin is added to water solution of starch water.