

A method for making wheat bread relates to food industry, in particular to baking industry and provides for kneading the dough from the recipe components, fermenting the dough, handling thereof, proofing and baking the bread.