

A protection device against negative radiation comprises a metal body. The metal body is made as a shell having a hole in the bottom; a cylindrical drum has height equals to half-difference between outer drum diameter and hole's diameter.