

The electronic cash register relates to an area of trade and providing services and can be used in cash registers with program-technical means.

The utility model concerns a trade area and rendering services. The electronic cash register comprises a monitor (3) of the cashier, a display (4) of the buyer, a fiscal recording device (5) made with possibility to operate in recording mode of the electronic account readout device (6) and a programed keyboard (7). They are connected to a processor (1) where through an information network (2) by means of a transaction processing server (1) a program block made as the program block (9) for credit and drawdown of money resources is connected. It includes subblocks (10), (11), (12), (13) and (14) – administering, data input, data storage, data reporting and teller correspondingly. The electronic account readout device (6) is made with possibility of contacting, noncontacting or combined interaction with information electronic carrier (15), mainly in the form of electronic plastic cards (smart cards). Such cash register possesses wider functionality in comparison with the known similar ones.