

An executive device of bulldozer consists of blade in rectangular elliptical form. The blade consists of several sections hinged to each other and has spring movably attached between pushing beam one end of which is rigidly connected to the lower sections of the blade and angle brace that is hinged between the upper section of the blade and pushing beam.