

A process for activation of soil microbiota in conditions of biological agriculture maintenance comprises the extraction of pure cultures, selection by agronomically useful properties, preplant bacterization. As preparations for the preplant bacterization of seeds on the very same soils from which they were extracted, the extracted pure cultures from the investigating soils are used.