

A method of rolling strips on continuous mill, which includes unwinding a strip, its rolling in stands and winding into a coil. During rolling the rear end of strip an electric motor of drive of working shafts of the first stand of mill is turned off, the strip is rolled (drawn) through the idle working shafts of the first stand by the working shafts of the second stand of mill.