

A device for electric heating saloon carriages of motor-carriages of rolling stock comprises a casing with holes, insulators on which thermal electric heating units are installed connected by bridges, and a cover. The casing is provided with sockets located on opposite side walls, holes are located horizontally in the middle of working part of the casing. Bridges are made of sheet aluminum.