

A device for fixing the head of cattle while knocking relates to meat preparation and preservation industry, in particular to devices used while slaughtering animals, namely to devices for fixing the head of cattle prior to slaughtering, and can be used at meat-processing factories of different property forms.