

A method for energy wireless transmission consists in that AC power source is connected to an open oscillating circuit of a transmitter. Energy transmission is realized through series-oscillatory circuit which is formed by the transmitter and receiver.