

A method for storing things in areas of public entertainment and beaches includes installation of a cloakroom. It is equipped with cells, each of which contains a key for closing. After closing a unique code is assigned to each key. The key with code is placed in a repository. A wrist bracelet is given to the user, which bears the cell number and personal code.