

The kiosk comprises the mounting hole-body with a control and processing data module mounted in it on the base of a microcontroller and reception and bank note check, print, image, data input modules, an accumulator, universal power supply element connected with it. Additionally there are navigation and selection, protection, climate control, emergency current shutting-down modules, each of them being connected with the control and data processing module