

A device for making cotton candy comprises a body, a head with an opening for powdered sugar or syrup, mounted vertically, on which slots for obtaining sugar filaments are made, a drive and a heating element. Blades which are made at angle of 35-55 degrees are arranged on the head.