

A device for decrease of losses of electric energy for lighting relates to lighting equipment and can be used in systems for permanent lighting in premises or in the street.