

A mold with a loading device for compression of multi-layer powder bearings and filters comprises a shrouded fixed die, upper and lower movable punches, a movable central rod, a loading device made in the form of two or more sleeves of different diameters. In the case the sleeves are interconnected along upper ends by three crosspieces by spot welding.