

A method for modelling a shape of artificial nail relates to nail aesthetic, in particular to modeling and design of nail shape, extension and decoration thereof. The technical result of the utility model consists in attraction and utility of the Monroe shape that allows achieving desired result at any shape of natural nails.