

A method of liquid aerosol formation includes ultrasound action on liquid and use of an air flow. Ultrasonic vibrations are fed in liquid layer in the direction of its free horizontal surface. An aerosol cloud formed over the free surface of liquid is removed with the air flow.