

A device for microfeeding billets for grinding comprises a frame, on which guides, an upper plate, and piezoelectric elements are located. The device is additionally equipped with an actuator, which has a spherical shape and is mounted with possibility of contact along the conical surface of upper plate. The piezoelectric elements are arranged in the guides, and the axes of guides and piezoelectric elements are parallel.