

A method for classifying the samples of sunflower according to protein content in the nuclei of the mature seeds is based on the 9-grade scale (accounting for class intervals) and corresponding scores for the assessment.