

A method for network subscriber refill code includes use of Internet, effecting service payment transaction, subscriber unique number assignment paid content, refill code-message delivering to subscriber. An electronic receipt is received. The messages from the mobile aggregator of successful refill code message-delivery are received from the mobile server on content-provider server.