

A slitting machine consists of a frame, a lower cutter shaft, a drive shaft of upper cutters, a set of upper cutters, which are fixed to a mounting beam of bed. For ease of installation and repair of the slitting machine the upper cutters are made in the form of a mounting block, under which a mounting bracket with a holder of cutter is located, which is driven through a belt drive.