

A vegetable slicer, which consists of a cylindrical tank, in the upper part of which a groove is made along the ring, into which a conical lid is inserted, on which center a lever with a handle is located for generation of rotations, which are transmitted via a connecting shaft to a conical nozzle, which is placed under the conical lid, and on the conical surface vertical rows of holes with sharp blades are made that perform shredding vegetables with a given shape and size of slices, when they are supplied into a rectangular-oval hole made on the conical surface of lid, through a rectangular-oval pipe fixed on said surface.