

A working body for splitting wood comprises a fixed cutter with four blades. In vertical and horizontal planes of arrangement of the blades of fixed cutter are additionally mounted four circular cutter, which rotate freely on radial thrust bearings in forks attached to a frame, in the case the circular cutters are placed directly in front of the fixed cutter in the direction of the workpiece movement thus providing additional pre-cutting fibers of wood surface layers.