

A method for treating the children with deviation in psychic development comprises the therapy with dolphins and physiotherapeutic procedures, namely three-dimensional pneumopressing applied to craniosacral area, the back and the thorax.