

A method for producing of nanostructure cathode material based on nickel for electrochemical extraction of hydrogen comprises the placing of nanostructure elements as cones on horizontal surface of nickel from one side. Platinum from  $\text{K}_2[\text{PtCl}_6]$  saturated solution is additionally precipitated on cone node. The pulses of direct voltage are supplied.