

An information search method in a text array relates to digital data processing with electrical appliances and can be used, e.g. for document retrieval automation of regulatory and near-legal topics in the data storage database formed in a special way.