

A stimulation method for process of printed product sale in particular of a literary work, in the market, includes encryption of defined information element and location it on pages of the literary work, decryption of it and receipt reward with regular decryption. On each copy of the literary work where on pages defined there is encoded information, an individual designation as a hologram element or a label with an individual index.