

A method for applying duodenojejunal anastomosis following resection of the segment of jejunum comprises the mobilization of the intestine separating it from the adjacent tissues, the partial resection within the limits of non-injured areas, and the generation of duodenojejunal anastomosis. The proximal and distal segments of duodenojejunal intestinal areas are joined over Treitz ligament.