

A device for interruption of water flow to siphon of a flash tank in which inside the bell a separate tightly closed floater chamber is placed, and in the tail element of the bell and in the upper section of the start knob coaxial openings with diameters 6-7 mm are provided, those form an air channel that passes to working suction zone, the opening of the start knob is equipped with a spill knob with slots, rubber tightening washer and return spring.