

Device for measurement of water and bottom sediments temperature includes a sounding cylindrical body with thermo-indicators in whole length, instrument container of register, cable and ballast weights. Thermo-indicators in the sounding cylindrical body are placed in equal intervals one from another, and at the body at outside fixation ring is installed. Coaxially to the sounding body the instrument container of register is installed, this is tightly closed from beneath with cover-flange in which indicators of water and pressure are additionally installed. At above of the container, on the upper cover, a eye-plug is installed, On the body of the instrument container nib-stabilizers are installed.