

An installation for thermal treatment of oil seed comprises a hopper, a cylindrical body, inducer on the outer surface of the body in which ferromagnetic rods are installed with possibility of rotation, and displaced with respect to the axis of rotation and one from another.