

A tornado trap comprises a vibration unit and a cone connected thereto covering with inner convergence angle of 60° and a diameter twice bigger than a diameter of a unit with double covering and a distance between walls of 12 mm width. The last ones are connected to one another using a system of perforated partitions, between-wall-spaces are filled with helium under pressure equal to 0.02 atm or not more than said value.