

A wind dematerialization device comprises a cubic box, where in the center a four-tube construction is positioned. The box has a double skin with a distance between walls equal to 12 mm width, which are connected one to another by a system of solid perforated partitions. Between-wall-space is filled with helium under pressure equal to 0,02 atm or not more than said value.