

A device for treating liquid metal surface at producing an ingot comprises a mold for molten metal and a device to optimize the temperature of sink head of ingot, which is made in the form of a dispenser of periodic action mounted above the mold with universal exothermic mixture of aluminum and iron scale (termite).