

Metal doors comprise a door frame connected to door leaf, this includes hinges and lock device with applique armor. The face and inner surfaces of the door leaf are made of material obtained with surface-plastic deformation.