

An interface block of multichannel magnetic rail flaw detector relates to systems of diagnostics of condition of rail transport objects. The block is equipped with power electromagnets for rail magnetization. At point of rail fault the magnetic field is established.