

A protective ring device can be used predominantly as a protective signaling system of the door that operates along with a call button outboard.