

In a method for arc welding with a consumable electrode with a combined pulse action the process parameters are changed. During welding the welding current and voltage are periodically changed. Additionally the welding current is modulated using the pulse feed of an electrode and pulse feed frequency exceeds the period of change in welding current and voltage.