

A method for providing the subsidies to the citizens comprises the generation and maintenance of the database of the persons requiring the subsidies. Prior to storage of the data, each category of the consumers is assigned with specific attribute used for the structuring according to the categories of the consumers. The plastic card with the magnetic stripe contains these unique personal data as to the set of the goods with unique PIN and the addresses of the subsidy-providing facilities with bank accounts for transferring the subsidies.