

A self-descent device consists of two jaws with the element receiving the weight of the person, the immobile roll and the turning cam mounted between the jaws and the descending rope rounding the roll and the cam. The handle is connected with the turning cam on the side of rope entry into the self-descent device. The handle is equipped with the chute enclosing the descending rope and the rope clamp allowing for clamping the rope in the chute.