

A method for determining a technology of operation of cars on delivery (collection) routes using an operator workstation of a logistic center of a transport company (terminal). To determine the technology of operation of cars on delivery (collection) routes from a set of alternatives units of simulation modeling and decision-making module are used. A device based on GPS-receiver is used to determine the geographic coordinates of customers.