

A combined automobile of smoke removal and gas extinguishing contains the fan for suction of the combustion gases from the smoke-logged premises and supplying the air or air-filled foam. In addition, the automobile contains carbon dioxide set consisting of eight carbon dioxide balloons type 50-150U (state standard 949-73), two rows with four balloons in each located on the chassis frame of the combined automobile of smoke removal.