

A shock centrifugal crusher comprises a rotor disposed in a housing, whose vertical rotating shaft is located on a support. A support guide element located on an introduced traverse is mounted on the upper part of shaft, wherein a blind hole is made. In the hollow between contact surfaces a ball is freely placed with possibility for adjusting the axial clearance and degree of freedom of the shaft relative to the support, with which the lower part of shaft is movably connected.