

An asynchronous electric motor with a hollow rotor comprises a housing, a hollow shaft with blades installed thereon, internal and external stators, the rotor is made of non-magnetic material (more frequently of aluminum alloy) as a thin-wall cylinder; moreover, holes in the form of longitudinal slots are made in the rotor, between the stationary stator and rotor a partition is installed.