

A method for individual protection from microwave radiation of mobile phones is characterized in that to reduce intensity of microwave radiation of a mobile phone received by user's biological tissue it is proposed to use a metal screen comprising a stainless steel greed (0.04 mm greed cell size, 0.03 mm fiber diameter) or the other screening or absorbing material applied between the mobile phone and user's body.