

Disclosed is a three-jaw self-centering chuck, in whose case at an angle to its axis clamping claws are located which are connected to a piston by a rod of machine drive. The working end of the chuck case at the location of clamping claws is equipped with lugs with through radial slots with a depth, which is less than the value of displacement of a piston.