

An apparatus for realization chemical experiments using small quantities of substances comprises a plane planchette with separate and/or mutually connected grooves, at that the grooves are equipped with the removable plugs some of which are provided with openings for the setting gas exhaust nozzles therein. At least one slot opening is made on the planchette into which the telescopic bearer with a removable nozzle is connected by the means of a fastening element, and inside this nozzle the filter and the piston are set.