

A nitrile protecting glove is made of polymer material and has the external and internal surfaces. The external surface, in its turn, has the back and palmar surfaces, and on the areas of the palm and fingertips it is made as textured with the prominent contact areas.